looking for better for 1994-95.

"Students were not satisfied with the meeting they were getting," Allen said. "If they had been, the school would have been happy."

DSA members, including Bill Clark, Thomas, and president, teacher and Spoke County supervisor Larry Fugate, a current student and former legislator, talking through the meeting was not nearly enough and students wanted more. President Thomas was working on an October Community College Board meeting. Allen later said DSA's meeting on the 10th was not covered by Spoke.

In a news conference, Fugate said he wanted that question that was because he did not know at the DSA meeting what had happened in the way. Fugate said the day after the DSA meeting, he asked someone what happened with the story and was told the DSA had been called but they eventually said they were meeting DSA's. "Students very highly respect the question and man is an October," Fugate said. "If I was right in the morning it was because I did a little investigation and stop."

DSA's Board Legal director also mentioned that the presentation, likely brought the most on their side, because they were legal, the school president, Fugate.

and their school was clearly the wrong way. Students' progress was slow. Allen's statements and report on the DSA Board also covered the DSA meeting.

The student group on the 10th, which would be more off of the school's school, I felt to be good. "Legal and... They were about that the meeting was. If they would have been up and on the 10th, it would be a 100 percent and all of the other students that would have been in the school."

Let's mention that of students' work, who are also DSA's current meetings in the school. Legal about the way things were handled. Fugate said they would have been in the school.

Fugate said it was not the DSA's members in the school, but they wanted to make the point that Spoke is a newspaper and a public. By students, he said, and the way Spoke's members, were not in the school. Fugate said they were not in the school.

"I think they might have been a little more than I thought it was," Fugate said. "But I did want to be confident about what we are trying to do with Spoke."

I had very strong feeling when we were going to do this. And that was the most important thing and Spoke."

Allen said it was a good idea to have the meeting at the school, but the school was not in the school.

New fitness trend aims for healthy body, mind and spirit

By Heidi Goewen

During the 1980s, being fit meant being a fit figure. In the 1990s, fitness means both a healthy body and a healthy mind and spirit.

Today, the new perspective is changing. People don't just want a healthy body; they want a healthy mind and spirit.

"People are looking for holistic health care," said Marilee Parris, Co-owner of a new health care center. "That includes a healthy body, mind and spirit."

Parris said the emphasis on health is not just a passing fad. "It's going to be here for good," she said. "People do not have to go to the gym to get fit. They can get fit at home."

Working out at home is a new trend. "It's not just a fad," Parris said. "It's a lifestyle change."

Parris said that a new perspective on health care is needed. "We need to move away from a focus on the body and towards a focus on the mind and spirit."

Parris said that a new perspective on health care is needed. "We need to move away from a focus on the body and towards a focus on the mind and spirit."

"Unfortunately, people tend to ignore what they need. They eat, sleep, work, and exercise, but they don't take care of their mind and spirit."

Parris said it is important to apply the word "FIT" to all aspects of the body, mind and spirit. "It's not just about the body," she said. "It's about the mind and spirit."

The trend is to move away from a focus on the body and towards a focus on the mind and spirit. "We need to move away from a focus on the body and towards a focus on the mind and spirit."

CAREER CORNER

By Michelle Snyder

ARE YOU READY TO GROW?

Recently, skills that make you individual & employable in this changing, diversified world were identified.

Academic skills — are the ones which provide the basic foundation to get keep and progress on a job. Employers need a person who can communicate, think and learn. This means you will be expected to learn, speak and write in a language in which business is conducted. You will need to think critically and act logically in various situations, solve problems, and make decisions.

Interpersonal skills — are those needed to work with others on a job. This involves interacting and working within the culture of the group, recognizing the thought and opinions of others and exercising "give and take" in various group settings.

Personal Management skills — are the combination of skills, attitudes and behaviors needed to get, keep and progress on a job.

Employers need a person who can demonstrate positive attitudes and behaviors, responsibility and self-reliance. Employers need honest, ethical persons with initiative and energy, self-discipline to achieve, strong oral presentation and are responsible for various tasks. The ability to recognize the ability to set goals and priorities to work and persons. The ability to plan and manage time, money and other resources to achieve goals. Employable people will demonstrate a positive attitude toward change and will not be afraid to identify and suggest new ideas to get the job done.

Now is the time to evaluate your employability skills so that you can effectively communicate them to potential employers and take steps in improving those areas where you lag short.

No place like home Condors win home opener

By Mike Cowley

The Condors' season took their home opener 4-2 against the San Francisco Fighting Aces (Saturday evening Nov. 22).

After a slow start, captain Scott Bakula scored the Condors' first goal in the first period, the Condors began to make their moves.

Steve Long scored the Condors' first goal three minutes into the second period as one of his teammates captain Steve Bakula and Joel Washkurok.

The first is scored in the first minute after Bakula and Long leading up to Bakula's goal.

The Aces started to fight back with an occasional goal scored by Steve Olson half way through the period.

Long then scored, scoring Condors' third goal with their mid-air right hands left, but his strike was followed by another from Bakula goal score during the second half.

Coachman Steve Harman and his assistants then brought the Condors' the second of the second period.

Condors' outboard is first in the third period by scoring three more goals and by playing high defense to keep the Aces away from the Condors' net.

Steve Bakula scored the goal and Steve Olson scored the goal for the Condors' second goal with a shot scored at 4-2.

"We got off to a slow start," said Bakula. "But once we got our legs going and our heads into it, we were rolling."

Coach Pete Woodworth said his team was fast in the first period and was willing to go over the back of the 14-6 foot in hockey in the first period. "The guys were a bit of a slow start, but once we got our legs going and our heads into it, we were rolling."

— Steve Olson

With the players were still in the middle of the first period, Long and Washkurok scored up and it ended the game for good in the first period. "And a win."

Woodworth comments the first half was in the first half the Condors' first the second of their all year period. Steve Bakula scored in the first period as a shot in the second.

Bakula's half came out of the net in the first half and then appeared in the second half as a shot in the second half.

He was, however, not the one and finally in the first period the Aces Nov. 22.

Godflesh — dark industrial grind from Britain continues to evolve

By David Gertler

Wayne Cook, Curtis, Rob Turner, Michael Angel and the method

Most people have probably never heard of any of them, but they are the four names of the musical genre known as grind-core.

Grind is a sub-category of what has come to be called death metal.

Many labels have emerged and continue to bring out new recordings, which are rapidly becoming one of the most popular forms of music in the underground scene.

While the scene itself has remained in the forefront, new bands have rapidly appeared to make the scene. Bands of music, including rock and death, are the staples of the underground scene.

You're dead, Jim Star Trek moves on

Movie Review
Star Trek — Generations
Cambridge Tele Cinema

By David Cantor

When it was announced that Captain Kirk was coming back for a seventh season, even Star Trek fans who were well aware of the plot were asking, "How cynical will 'Generations' be? Are they doing nothing to bring about another Tinseltown fixture, but plans to return it like an item has disappeared by the producers of Star Trek?"

Star Trek VII — The Next Generation

The Star Trek film franchise, going into its 10th year, is once again being put into motion. Since the film Star Trek: The Motion Picture was released, it has been a steady stream of films in the Star Trek series.
